

One Another®

Ministries International

November 2009

Dear friends,

Scripture says we don't really know what a day may bring. I often say the same thing of those we receive here at One Another; we never really know who may walk through the door. Their calling is sometimes similar, but their stories are as different as the places they serve. Their challenges, difficulties and victories are very personal. They are simply "sent ones" and because they are, Proverbs 27 reminds us "to know the state of our flocks;" especially those who have been sent to take the gospel into some very difficult places.

One Another's ministry is to care for those who care for the world. We come alongside those serving in hard places. Since change is inevitable, we help missionaries and Christian workers identify and prevent the negative effects of change related stress.

A missionary recently wrote:

"One Another Ministries was available at just the right moment, right when help was needed. It provided a safe place to debrief and to discover a clear perspective on my ministry situation, to see and to place all the elements uncovered in their appropriate place. Confidence was reestablished to take the next step and move forward with God's call upon my life. Thank you for this vital ministry to missionaries in action."

And our thanks to you for helping us help them serve better in many distant places in the world.

Pray with us as we ask God to:

- strengthen new converts and bless their obedience
- break the snares of the enemy
- speak truth into the lives of those making positive decisions
- supply funds needed to best care for soldiers on the front lines
